REVERSES FOR ALLIES

German Attacks on Both British and French Fronts Are Partially Successful.—Grown Prince Scores Gain.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
With the Belgian Army in Flanders, the Allies have been fighting on this part of the western front, where the Belgian and German lines are separated by miles of flooded lands. Trenches are almost unbroken here. The only thing approximating them are bombing expeditions, carried on from ships which are moored under cover of darkness to the enemy's lines.

Success for Crown Prince.
Berlin, May 15.—Troops of the crown prince have captured the farm of St. Berche, east of Fort de Marnion, on the Aisne front, today's army headquarters statement announces.

German Night Attack.
Paris, May 15.—An attack was made by the Germans last night on an extended front. Today's official statement says it was repulsed by French troops. The Germans were able to get a footing only in an advanced trench.

Force British Back.
London, May 15.—The British attack on British positions in the Bullecourt region, on the Arras front, today's official statement says the Germans pushed up in Bullecourt, but the British advance posts in the northwestern portion of the village were forced back a short distance.

On Italian Front.
Rome, May 15.—The Italian attack on Italian positions in the Carso region, today's official statement says the Italians took offensive today. The war office announces considerable progress was made in the Carso area on the slopes of Monte Cucco and on the hills east of Gorizia and Vertolizza.

The Italians also made a thrust in the northern sector of Carso. They reached the points of Monte Cucco and on the hills east of Gorizia and took prisoners.

The statement says the infantry action continues, supported by artillery. Numbers of prisoners are being brought in.

THOUSAND BADGERS AT FT. SHERIDAN

Milwaukee, May 15.—More than 1,000 Wisconsin men are in training at Fort Sheridan, with the view of becoming a commanding force. The first class of 500,000 men, according to the Wisconsin Training Camp Association today, the last contingent of candidates for commissions entered the lake shore camp today.

The three weeks' campaign for men of ability to enter the reserve officers' training course resulted in the appointment of more than double the number of men to the training. Many hundreds were rejected for various reasons. Physical defects were responsible for most of the "throw-downs."

It is probable that many trainees will be accepted in their hopes for commissions when it comes to the real mental tests. Scores of them with college education succeeded in passing preliminary examinations. It was pointed out that a practical education was the chief requisite along that line and that "horse sense" and the quality of leadership were prime necessities.

By the time the three months' intensive training is over Wisconsin's quota will have been reduced several times. Officers are being selected from the ranks of more than a thousand to start with. Wisconsin bids fair to have as many or more commissioned men in the trenches as any other state in the union, according to population.

1,200 Men Short.
Fort Sheridan, Ill., May 15.—More than 1,200 men short of quota, the Wisconsin Training Camp Association today announced that the actual schooling is to be made officers of Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan civilians.

For training only 3,736 appeared and as a result, the places of the others will be filled by men passed as suitable for whom training has been refused.

Their non-appearance for the most part, was attributed to their inability to pay the expenses incurred upon short notice. The Illinois quota was short about 450 men and that of the other states about 550.

Every effort will be made to give the men in three months the essentials of a three years' training. Instruction in military training and tactics, the end of all of the pomp and ceremony of ordinary military camp has been eliminated.

Appeal to Physicians.
Chicago, Ill., May 15.—An appeal to physicians and surgeons throughout the middle west, to perform operations which would make acceptable men who have been rejected as naval recruits because of minor physical ailments, was issued by Captain W. A. Moffett, commanding U. S. naval training school here. Citizens recruiting committees also are asked to defray the expenses of the operations.

With some 7,000 men in training on the Central states in training, the population of the station today was at the highest mark in its history.

Need Army Cooks.
Chicago, May 15.—Col. Daniel McCarthy, department quartermaster, has issued an appeal to hotel men of the country for cooks for the new army.

FORMER AMBASSADOR TO GREAT BRITAIN JOS. H. CHOATE DIES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, May 15.—Joseph Hodges Choate, former ambassador to Great Britain and lawyer of international fame, died suddenly of heart failure late last night at his home in this city. Notwithstanding his advanced years—eighty-five—Mr. Choate took an active part in the entertainment last week of the French and British war commissioners.

Of New England Stock.
Mr. Choate came from an old New England family, noted for strength of character and mental vigor. His father was a cousin of the famous Rufus Choate. He was graduated from Harvard in 1862, a college mate of Philip Brooks. He established himself in New York in 1866 soon after finishing his law studies, and as a member of the firm of Everts, Southmayd and Choate he rose to leadership of the New York bar.

He appeared in all the celebrated cases. He was said a case was not a case unless Choate appeared in it—where his fluency and wit and searching cross-examination brought a convincing success. He figured in the prosecution of "Boss" Tweed and his followers who looted the New York City treasury; he so successfully defended General Fitz Porter that by reversal of a court martial that officer was reinstated; he appeared in the Tilden case, the congressional case, the case of the exclusion of the act. These are but a few of the famous litigations in which he figured. His presence invariably made any case an intellectual treat for the public, and a professional education for junior members of the bar.

Ambassador to England.
Mr. Choate was a Republican, but had never held public office, beyond a brief term as member of a state constitutional convention when he was invited by President McKinley in 1897 to go to London as the American ambassador. At a farewell dinner at the Union League club, Mr. Choate remarked upon his inexperience in diplomatic life. "I shall rely," he said, "upon a happy temperament."

After his six years in England he was lauded on both sides of the Atlantic for the remarkable success he had had in strengthening the ties between the English speaking peoples. His range of social acquaintance was known as ambassador to the people as well as to the court. Numerous times he appeared as a lecturer on American institutions and American statesmanship.

A mark of respect never before conferred upon a foreigner in England since the middle of the seventeenth century was paid him when he was adopted by the inner circle in the British bar and made a "bencher" or member of the governing body of the Middle Temple. It was, in fact, a compliment never before paid in England to a foreigner.

An After Dinner Speaker.
An after dinner speaker, Mr. Choate was a national international possession. The stories told about him, too, were as countless as those he told. For he was one of those who could tell a story which would cluster some of which undoubtedly belonged to others. One typical flash of his wit was that with which he answered a dinner partner who asked him who he chose to be if he were not Joseph H. Choate.

"Mrs. Choate's second husband," was the instantaneous reply. "The first was the one who married her in 1861, and by whom he had five children."

Superior to Lose
Big Tax Receipts

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Madison, May 15.—The city of Superior will lose upwards of $100,000 in income taxes as a result of decision of Wisconsin supreme court today in the case of Superior. The court has ruled that the city is not liable for the taxes on the property of the city. The court's decision is a victory for the city, which has been fighting the case for some time.

No reason is perceived why, for purposes of taxation, such property should not be classified as railroad property and subject to the same methods of taxation, said the court in an opinion written by Chief Justice Winslow.

ARMY DRAFT BILL AGAIN REPORTED

CONFERENCE AGREE ON ROOSEVELT'S ARMY CLAUSE IN CONSCRIPTION MEASURE.
BUT ONE CHANGE MADE

President Wilson Will Decide Whether Colonel Will Go to France or Not, According to Provision.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, May 15.—Senate and house conferees on the army bill today agreed to report the measure with provisions authorizing the president to raise the volunteer division of the army. The conferees agreed to change the house provision for Roosevelt volunteers. The senate has approved the volunteer force, but the full force of the administration is against it.

Whether Colonel Roosevelt and a volunteer force go abroad, however, remains for the president to decide. The provision is optional and not mandatory upon the president. The conscription age was left at twenty-one to thirty years, the conferees hope to have the bill finally adopted by both houses, and sent to the president.

GERMANS HAVE 325
ACTIVE SUBMARINES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Amsterdam, May 15.—The Germans have about three hundred and twenty-five submarines in operation and about eighty to one hundred have been lost through British nets alone, according to a Telegram which prints an interview with a member of the crew of a submarine U-55 which sank the Dutch grain ship in February.

When at sea the submarines assemble, at a given point every morning, and receive wireless instructions from the command. The submarines are about thirty-nine U-boats of the newest type, each carrying a crew of fifty-six men and this fleet is supplemented by a flotilla of older boats. The new boats have speed enough to overtake any cargo boat. They carry a fortnight's store and have maximum period of submergence of from eight to ten hours.

POTATO SHORTAGE
PINCHES GERMANY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Copenhagen, May 15.—The potato shortage in Germany is making itself felt in spite of assurances at the time the bread ration was reduced last month that enough potatoes would be on hand to permit weekly bread rationing. The bureau of food control by strenuous effort has been able to supply a five pound ration in the Berlin and Westphalia districts, but in other districts, where the labor crisis at the time of the reduction of the bread ration was particularly acute. Bitter complaints, however, are coming from various other sections of the Reich, where the potato shortage is being felt. In many sections of Bavaria, according to reports to Reichstag, the potato ration is only 24 ounces weekly.

$3,390,946,000 War Fund Is Recommended By Senate Committee

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, May 15.—All appropriation records of congress were broken today when the senate appropriation committee reported the war, army and navy deficiency bill carrying a total of $3,390,946,000, including $400,000,000 for construction and purchase of an American merchant marine.

The committee added $663,392,000 to the house bill, and the senate bill increases by $500,000 for the council of national defense; $1,000,000 for detention of interned Germans; $26,000,000 for army machine guns, and $1,000,000 for heavy army ordnance.

If the appropriations which will be added to the $2,890,000,000 army and navy war budget, $200,000,000 will be authorized for construction and slightly less than $150,000,000 for purchase of ships wherever available. The remainder will be authorized but not immediately appropriated.

The appropriations were recommended by General Goethals and Chairman Denman of the shipping board, in furtherance of the program for an American merchant marine.

To expedite and get the funds promptly it was decided to add the legislative provision to the appropriation measure.

YOUNG BANK ROBBER
CONFESSES MURDER
OF ST. PAUL WOMAN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
San Francisco, May 15.—Joseph Redenbaugh, alias Edward Hamilton, a youth of nineteen, last night confessed, according to the police, that he had shot and killed Mrs. Alice M. Quinn Dunn, a devoted wife of H. C. Dunn, a St. Paul contractor, in St. Paul, April 22, and he shot and killed policeman George Connelly in Minneapolis, who had arrested him for speeding.

Confesses to Robberies.
Redenbaugh also confessed, according to the police, he robbed the First National Bank at University Place, Nebraska; he robbed a safe in Ripley, Oklahoma, and he had stolen and sold a score or more of automobiles in eastern and middle west states. Redenbaugh told the police of the murder of Mrs. Dunn, who was killed last April, and when he was first arrested he was told he could get $2,000 for "red" work. He said he did not feel like it at the time and went to University Place, where he robbed the bank. He said the day after the robbery he went to Kansas City and

In order to save his wife from prosecution for murder, according to his own statement, he has now made his confession.

Redenbaugh said that after the death of Connelly, he went again to the man who approached him about killing Mrs. Dunn and told him he was ready to do it. He said Frank McCool, who accompanied him when Connelly was killed, was with him and was a share in the pay for killing Mrs. Dunn. He then demanded $3,000. He then detailed, according to the police, the manner in which he entered the home of Mrs. Dunn and went immediately. He said he came west immediately, and the two bell boys who were with him he had brought from Salt Lake City, but he had nothing to do with the two murders.

To Secure Extradition.
St. Paul and Minneapolis officers will arrive today, according to the police, to ask for the extradition of Redenbaugh. The local district attorney and police state they will give preference to St. Paul. They believe that the conviction is more certain in St. Paul.

The prisoner told the police he intended to rob a San Francisco bank but upon investigation made a run to St. Paul. He said he was not a professional robber, but he was a desperate man. He said he was first taken into custody for robbery when he was nine years old.

FOREST FIRES RAGE

The fire had arrived after the fire had completed the destruction. Fires are reported to have threatened Villa Scholastica, a large Catholic girls' school near Duluth, but were turned by a bucket brigade.

At the Mill Or Any Grocery Store For Cash.
Not a Patent, But Equally Nutritious.

WITH the necessity for economy sharply brought to notice in every home, this announcement contains most welcome news for everyone, offering as it does a splendid chance to economize on that most needed of all articles in the home—FLOUR.

For many years this firm has handled thousands of barrels annually of this intermediate grade of Wheat Flour. Every pound of it has been eaten as bread, but heretofore we have always blended it with Rye and sold it as Rye-Wheat. Now for American tastes, purely as an American product to help out economical conditions we are leaving out the Rye and selling it pure under the brand name of THRIFT. This is not a patent flour, but is equally nutritious. Use it pure and save the most. Use it blended with patent, if you wish, and still save money.

THRIFT BRAND WILL BE SOLD FOR CASH

Part of the high cost of living is the charge account. To keep the cost of THRIFT at the lowest level, we will sell only for cash to either consumer or grocer and the grocer will ask you to pay cash for THRIFT.

We advise that you place your order early. Naturally, THRIFT will advance the same as Patent Flour when wheat goes up in price.

War and Bread

War presents to all of us problems that we have never before anticipated. War will cost us heavily in lives and treasure but war also brings its compensations. War breeds necessity and necessity stimulates the solving of difficult problems successfully. The question of food supplies for the coming season promises to be acute and of all food supplies bread is the corner stone.

Bread, in this country generally speaking means White Bread which can only be made from Patent Flour. Patent Flour represents approximately sixty percent of the whole product of wheat. Therefore white bread utilizes only a little more than half of the wheat ground. The remaining product is divided between feedstuffs and intermediate grades of flour darker in color than patents.

The winter wheat crop this year is the smallest grown in thirty years, a crop so small that if to it is added the maximum spring wheat crop that can be possibly produced under the most favorable weather conditions the total supply available will just about equal the normal requirements of our domestic consumption.

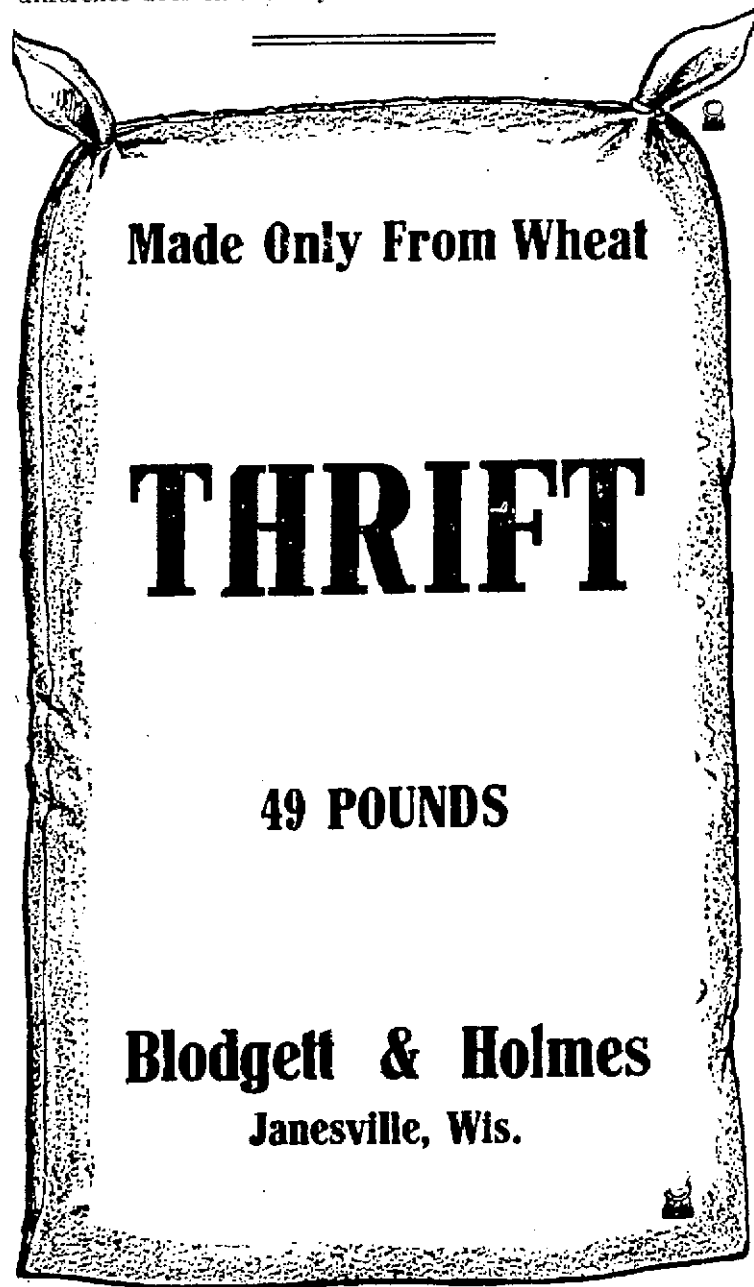

But war in which we are engaged requires our sharing our supplies with our Allies. It is therefore clearly evident that we must consume far less white bread the coming season than we have ever done before and that we must to a certain extent substitute bread made in part or in whole from other cereals or other grades of Wheat Flour than those known as patents.

Attention is naturally directed first to the intermediate grades of Wheat Flour which have not heretofore been marketed for wheat bread requirements. How do they compare in value with patents and how do they differ?

Comparative value of any product depends upon the standard by which it is measured. In food stuffs the standard should be the percentages of food elements possessed. In flour the principal food elements are fat and protein. On the authority of a leading food laboratory (name on request) patent wheat flour averages 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ % fat and 11% protein, while the intermediate grades of wheat flour average 3% fat and 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ % protein. But while these intermediate grades possess more fat and protein they also possess more color so that a bread made from these intermediate grades of wheat flour will in color more nearly resemble a whole wheat or rye.

At the present time these intermediate grades (because of the fact that they have never before to any extent been offered as bread flours) can be bought at a considerable discount under patent.

We do not anticipate that when the real food value of these intermediate grades are fully recognized that there will continue to exist any great difference in price. But such a difference does exist today.

City Engineer

The thing that made the engineer hardest was that his weakness was exactly what he had foreseen and pointed out. It was the possibility of the failure of this great member to carry the stress that young Meade had deduced by using the formula of Schuler's theorem. It was this point, and this point particularly, that he had set upon with his father, and which he, and agreed to a finish. So strongly had he been impressed with the possible structural weakness of this member that he had put himself on record in writing to his father. The old man had laughed him and now the bridge was only a half to one and three-quarter inches in sixty feet, established the accuracy of his unheeded contention. Valiantly now he wished he had not let the old habit of affection and the little touch of awe with which he regarded his father persuade him against his reason.

He stopped, feeling suddenly ill, as a very nervous high-strung man may feel under the sudden and unexpected physical shock. He was weak still from the tonsillitis. He leaned against the disjunct at the end of 12-10-11, clinging to it tightly to keep from falling. Abbott, who had followed more slowly, stopped by him, somewhat surprised, somewhat amused, more indignant than both.

"Abbott," said Meade fiercely as the engineering engineer joined him on the pierhead, "if you put another pound of load on that cantilever I will not be answerable for the consequences."

"What do you mean?"

"That deflection is nearly two inches deep now and every ounce or pound of added weight you put upon it will make it greater. Its limit will be reached in a moment. If it collapses—" he threw up his hands—"the whole thing will go."

"Yes, if it collapses, that's true," said Abbott, "but it won't."

"You're mad," said Meade, taking unforunately the wrong course with the other man.

"Why, boy," said Abbott, "that bridge will stand as long as creation. Look at it. That buckle doesn't amount to first time a little of Abbott's contempt appeared in the younger man's voice.

Abbott reflected that there was nothing firm enough to serve as a support for jacks and said rather grudgingly, for it seemed like a concession to the younger and junior engineer:

"Well, I can hook on to the opposite truss and pull it back with turn buckles."

"That will damage the other truss too much, Abbott," Meade retorted promptly. "It isn't possible."

"Then I'll think up some other scheme," returned Abbott indifferently, as if hampering the other. "We can't wait, we've got to hurry it along. There's going to be no penalty against us on account of me. I won't stop work a minute," he explained patronizingly.

"There will be a bigger penalty if you don't do what I say, and paid in another way, in blood. And it will be your fault."

Now both men were angry and in their passion they confronted each other more resolute and fiercer than ever.

"Look here," said Abbott, his fiery temper suddenly breaking from his control, "who are you anyway? You're only a kid engineer. Your father approved of the plan of this bridge. I guess we can afford to bank on his reputation rather than yours."

"Well, he doesn't know of this."

"Nobody is on the bridge now, and nobody is going to be on there until tomorrow morning. Wire him if you like. He'll wire Hingworth down at Martlet and we'll get word what to do."

"You won't put any men at work on the bridge until—"

"Not until tomorrow morning," said Abbott decisively. "If I don't hear from somebody at Martlet tomorrow morning the work goes on."

"But if my father wires you—"

"I take orders from the Martlet company and no one else," was the short answer with which Abbott turned away in finality, so that the other realized the interview was over.

Meade wasted no more pleas on Abbott. As ill luck would have it something had happened to the telephone and telegraph wires between the city and the camp. Meade dressed himself, got a headache, and was hurried to the nearest town on the railroad's main line. From there he sent a telegram and tried to get connection with New York by telephone, but failed. Moved by a natural impulse, in default of other means of communication, he jumped on the midnight train for New York. He would go himself in person and attend to the grave affair. Nothing whatever could be so important.

There had been some friction between Abbott and Meade before on occasions, not serious, but several times Meade had ventured to suggest something which to Abbott seemed useless and unnecessary, and the fact that subsequent events had more often than not proved Meade's suggestions to be worth while, had not put Abbott in altogether the best mood toward his young colleague. Abbott never forgot that Meade had really no official connection with the building of the bridge, and that he was only there as a special representative of his father, and although he could not help liking the younger man, Abbott would have been better pleased if he had been left alone.

Meade had not gone about it in the right way to move a man of Abbott's temperament. He realized that as he lay awake on the sleeper speeding to New York, Abbott was a man who could not be driven. He was a tremendous driver himself and naturally he could not take his own medicine. If Meade had received the announcement more quietly and if he had by some subtle suggestion put the idea of danger into Abbott's mind all would have been well, for when he was not blinded by prejudice, or his authority or his ability questioned, Abbott was a sensible man thoroughly to be depended upon. But the news had come to Meade with such suddenness, Abbott had only casually mentioned it at the close of a lengthy conversation regarding the progress of the work as if it were a matter of no special moment, that the sudden shock had thrown Meade off his balance.

Therefore he could see nothing but danger and the necessity for action. How he should handle his superior, or rather the bridge's superior, was the last thing in his mind. Aside from his natural pride in his father and in the bridge and his fear that lives would be lost if it failed, unless he could get the men withdrawn, there was the complication of his engagement to Helen Hingworth.

As Age Advances the Liver Requires occasional slight stimulation.

Colorless or Pale Faces usually indicate the absence of Iron in the blood, a condition which will be greatly helped by Carter's Iron Pills

Meade could not close his eyes, he could not sleep a moment on the train. His mind was in a turmoil. Prayers that he would get to his father and the bridge people in time to stop work and prevent loss of life, schemes for taking up the deflection, strengthening the member, and completing the bridge, and fears that he would lose the woman, stayed with him through the night.

CHAPTER V.

The Death Message.

Meade, Sr., was an old man. Although unlike Moses his eye was dim and his natural force abated, the evidences of power were still apparent, especially to the observant. There rose the broad brow of the thinker. His power of intense concentration was expressed outwardly by a directness of gaze from the old eyes which, though faded, could flash on occasion. Other facial characteristics of that snow-crowned, leonine head, which bespoke that imaginative power without which a great engineer could not be in spite of all his scientific exactitudes, had not been cut out of his countenance by the pruning knife of time.

He was a great engineer and looked it, sitting alone in his office with the telegram crushed in his trembling hand, despite the fact that his gray face was the very picture of unwonted weakness, of impotency, and abiding horror. The message had struck him a terrible blow. He had reeled under it and had sunk down in the chair in a state of nervous collapse.

The telegram fairly buened the clammy palm of his hand. He would faint have dropped it yet he could not. Slowly he opened it once more. Ordinarily, powerful glasses stimulated his vision. He needed nothing to read it again. It is doubtful whether his eyes saw it or not and there was no need, for the message was burned into his brain.

He read again the mysterious words: One and three-quarter-inch camber in C-10-R.

Dinner Stories

A group of northerners at a hotel in Louisville were poking fun at the partiality of southerners for the titles of "Colonel," "Major" and "Judge." What is a colonel hereabouts? asked one of the group, and there immediately followed a discussion. Finally a colored attendant was drawn in. "Well, gents," said the negro, "dere's lots of ways to an swer dat question. Ise knowed folks what was born kunnels—I jest run in de blood for generations. An' Ise knowed folks who was jest appointed to be kunnels. An' yit others was made kunnels by bein' kind to niggers. Why, gents, any man dat give me a dollar is a kunnel to me henceforth forevever."

A novelist was arguing against vegetarianism. The vegetarians' claims are fantastic," he said. "It's no use reasoning with them."

"A rabid vegetarian once said to me: 'It is a matter of universal record that meat eaters grow like the meats they eat. Thus the beef eaters become dull and bovine. The mutton eater becomes sheepish. The veal eater is a calf. The pork eater is a hog.'"

"My loud laughter interrupted him. 'True, quite true, my friend,' I said. 'But you also noticed how all you vegetarian potato eaters are small potatoes.'"

"Every man should know something about diamonds," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "But he oughtn't to neglect other things. I've just took my boy Josh's shogun away from him an' told him to keep busy with the hoe."

FOUR BOUT EXHIBIT
WEDNESDAY EVENING

Janesville Fight Club Has Eight Fast Lads Matched for Mill at Rink Tomorrow Night.

The Southern Wisconsin Athletic association will stage another show at the rink building Wednesday night. A four bout card is expected to feature the opening go is scheduled for 8:30 sharp. Only Horzog of Oshkosh and Young Kick of Rockford, the latter who has been seen on several occasions through the season, will meet in the windup. They will go the Wisconsin route at 122. Horzog is a classy and clever boxer and has been in the ring much since last fall. He has been winning the share of his battles by good means. Kick's ability is well known here. In his several showings he has proved a whirlwind and has been able to hold his own with practically everybody.

Kid Meyers and Charley Lyke of this city are the two local lads appearing. Meyers meets Tony Copen of Kenosha. They will go over a six round turn at 130. Lyke is matched with Gariske, the "Village Blacksmith." They meet at catch weights. What the promoters announce as expected by them as the event of the evening is the semi-final between Young White of Milwaukee and Kid Moha of Oshkosh. White has a trip-hammer action with a plowdriver punch. Moha will be remembered as the kid who put the boots to our forlorn hope here about a month ago. It came in the second round.

Since Kick has always brought a luck following from Rockford, arrangements have been made again to have the 11 o'clock interurban car held until the close of the show to permit the Forest City fans to return home that evening.

George Duffy, who has officiated at all bouts in the city, will again be in the ring. His services have been highly satisfactory, both to the gallery, the promoters and to the fighters themselves. The men will weigh in early. Duffy at 10 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Tom Abbott's, and Dr. R. W. Edden, the club's physician, will certify as to their physical ability to stand the strain.

HERMANN IN THIRD
STOPS J. COULON

Pete Hermann of New Orleans terminated the once brilliant career of Johnny Coulon at Racine Monday night when in the third round of their scheduled ten round go Hermann sent one across to the jaw. Johnny sank to the floor and remained on all fours until the count of nine, when he arose wobbly. Referee Stout called it quits. Coulon limped to the corner and said afterwards that he had fractured his knee cap in falling.

Coulon, as unlike the Coulon of old as the price of 1917 potatoes is like that of 1914, was a heavy mark for the New Orleans fighter. He gave away nine pounds to begin with, and landed only one punch during the time the bout lasted. That was a light left to the chin. Hermann did not show much. He did not have to. He added around until he got Coulon into the position he wanted, and then dropped him.

FULTON IS SEEKING SHORT CUT TO FAME

Fred Fulton is taking a short cut to permanent retirement from the pugilistic spotlight, or else he has found the short way back to popular favor with the fight fans.

Fulton wants to meet Sam Langford.

When Fred delivered in the full blow that lost him prestige in New York and sent him back to Minnesota, he brought down on his head the scorn of all New York fans. They haven't yet stopped talking about it.

Fulton seems to be the ideal man to meet Jess Wilkes for the championship. In spite of the unfortunate outcome of his affair with Carl Morris he still looms as the most logical man. Morris recovered when he made such a poor showing with Jim Coffey, and Frank Moran has been out of the ring for a long time.

Fulton is a fighter of ability. He was learning fast when he ran into the toughhouse methods of Morris. If he should get Sam into the ring and deliver the veteran negro there would be no one ready to say he wasn't at least half ready for the big fight.

Fulton couldn't come back with merely a point victory over the crafty black. While it would get back some of his lost prestige, it wouldn't necessarily entitle him to any further consideration. He would have to score a knockout and it wouldn't do to make it a halfway affair.

Gambut Smith once whipped Sam Langford in the records show, but he was foolish enough to try it again and the result was a defeat for Smith.

Langford sometimes fights wonderfully well; at other times he can be outpointed. But the white man has

LEONARD-KILBANE
GO A LIFE-SAVER

A match between Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, and Benny Leonard, the most prominent claimant of the American lightweight championship, would bring back with a punch the old days when good bouts in the lightweight division were the rule and not the exception.

It would determine with no truce the right of one man or the other to a twenty-round chance at Freddie Welsh's lightweight title, and, if Welsh didn't see fit to make the match, it might be possible for promoters and boxers to reach an agreement whereby Welsh would cease to exist as a champion.

Leonard is heavier than Kilbane and is such an aggressive, hard-hitting youth that Kilbane would be at a much greater disadvantage than in his recent fist-fest with Freddie Welsh. Leonard hits with both hands and takes advantage of every opening. Kilbane would have to travel at his best speed to save himself from defeat.

There is a great difference in the styles of the two men. Kilbane is a boxer and fighter outshines Leonard so long as he confines himself to brawls with featherweights. The handicap of meeting a man who would weigh about five pounds the heavier, however, would make it hard for him. Kilbane uses either hand with deadly effect. He possesses a left hook that is fast as lightning, and he enjoys the custody of a right hook or a right cross that is paralyzing when it lands. He stands ahead of rival performers in punching ability, for his heaviest punches invariably travel less than six inches.

Leonard cannot punch with such precision and effect. It is necessary for him to be back from his opponent a sufficient distance to get the full effect. He upstarts with either hand with tremendous power, quite an unusual accomplishment. Kilbane would have trouble defending himself from punches of that sort.

Kilbane's speed and excellent blocking probably would eliminate Leonard's chances for a knockout, but his cleverness would give him the opportunity of putting the crusher on Leonard. Kilbane looks the better of the two, when compared as workmen, but Leonard's weight evens the betting.

MORRIS MILLER

Walter (Dutch) Reuther, the youngster secured by the Cubs from the Pacific Coast league, is to be used regularly as a pitcher hereafter. Reuther is an all-around man of the type of George Sisler and Clarence Mitchell, and when Saler was injured two weeks ago, stepped in and played first base. The purchase of Fred Merkle from the Robins relieved Reuther from his duties at the initial bag, and Fred Mitchell has declared that he will allow Dutch to take his regular turn in the box. Reuther is said to have a lot of stuff, and to lack only control. Under Mitchell's tutelage, he ought to develop into a good young pitcher, if he has any ability at all.

Half a dozen National league managers, more or less, probably now wish they hadn't been so cautious

It's because their Turkish blend
is BALANCED

Balanced—that is what makes Fatima's blend mean comfort to you, even though you may smoke more often than usual.

The milder tobaccos in this Turkish blend are so well balanced with the richer, fuller-flavored leaves as to entirely off-set all undue "heaviness"—the cause of over-richness in so many other cigarettes.

And this very blending which makes Fatimas so comfortable (and therefore so sensible) is also just what imparts that unusually good Fatima taste.

But even so, you alone can decide whether or not you like Fatimas. That's easy to settle—try them.

last winter, when the Cardinals put Frank Snyder on the market. The story went the rounds that Snyder's shoulder was so bad he never would be able to throw or even hit, but his work this spring proves that a youngster can come back if he tries, unless they absolutely amputate the arm at the neck.

President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals has changed his mind about Outfielder Jack Smith. In 1915 Rickey, then manager of the St. Louis Browns, gave Smith a trial. It lasted three days, during which Smith did not get in a game, and Rickey said he would not do. Now Rickey says Smith is one of the most valuable players on the Cardinal team. The youngster has made a lot of progress in that time.

The Chicago Cubs cleaned house before starting on their eastern journey, by giving several releases, and in spite of his list of cripples manager Mitchell seems determined to get down to twenty-two men early. Mitchell started the training season with forty-two players, a number of whom he never had heard of. Since then he has made several swaps and was compelled to take on Merkle as an additional player because of Saler's injury. But in the meantime he has disposed of some twenty players absolutely.

If some of the major league club owners decide to make an experiment, baseball may be played at night. W. S. Ward, one of the owners of Washington Park, Brooklyn, is interested in a lighting plant which he is anxious to exploit. During the Buffalo Bill show at the park recently, with one-third of the war turn on a sharpshooter gave an exhibition of glass ball breaking which, in Mr. Ward's opinion, proved that baseball could be played after sundown. Ward paid a large sum for the exclusive lighting privileges, but the experiment didn't produce the desired results. The system has been improved since then and an effort will be made to have the major league men take it up. It might be worth trying.

Now that the Pittsburgh club has actually purchased a first baseman in the person of Bunny Brett, the fans of the Smokey City may lay off hammering him for two weeks for not landing Fred Merkle. Brett ought to go good in the National league, though he could not hold up against the pitching in the American a couple of years ago.

Pitcher Charley Schmutz, formerly of the Brooklynns, has refused to be traded by Seattle to Vancouver, and says he will enlist in Uncle Sam's new army.

According to George Tebeau, owner of the Kansas City team of the American Association, there will be no meeting of the organization at the present time to consider a policy of retrenchment, he declaring that his club, Indianapolis, Toledo, Louisville and Columbus all are opposed to a meeting for such a purpose. However, President Hickey, although declining to admit that the players would be asked to accept a reduction in salaries, after a conference with six of the eight managers of teams in the circuit, said the situation confronting the club owners would be placed before the players and owners alike. He denied that a plan to cancel a part of the schedule had even been contemplated, although the league had lost $10,000 because of postponements within the last ten days.

Manager Mathewson of the Reds lets it be known that he has no severe rules for his players, who are to be put on their honor. They can drink and they can smoke, or even keep late hours, provided they are always in condition to give him the best that is in them on the field.

St. Louis fans are already predicting the pennant for the Browns, and are not worrying about the Yanks or Red Sox.

There is a player limit of eighteen men in vogue in the Pacific Coast league but it will be further reduced to save expenses.

HERE'S A FELLER NEEDING A FRIEND

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, May 15.—If ever a feller needed a friend, the Netherlands needs one today.

Forced into the position of referee in a battle of business interests, the Dutch government is being clouded from both sides without the ghost of a show to hit back.

Germany's submarine campaign, but the issue right up to the Dutch government just as it was put up to President Wilson. But owing to military considerations, as well as trade interests, the Dutch government is being clouded from both sides without the ghost of a show to hit back.

The Dutchman thought Germany might really mean it, so he took a chance with seven ships. Every one was torpedoed, only two being saved. Convinced that Germany was not kidding, Holland suspended sailings in the west coast.

And that's all.
London newspapers have discovered a leak in the British food-stuff blockade around Germany. They claim that the British blockade permits food to be imported to much grain which eventually makes meat, and dairy products for Germany. The blockade is being broken by the Dutch government, which has to send her surplus cattle either on the hoof or as beef, and the Dutchmen are sure to squabble over the division. After that is done, Germany, judging from past performance, probably will reduce her coal exports to Holland.

There's just another little thing to make Holland's situation more difficult.

When the Dutch port authorities showed away a British armed merchantman, compelling the vessel to dump its gun overboard before allowing it to enter port, the entire blockade is a direct affront to their cause.

(Debated by the British censor.)
The British insist that they will make all reasonable concessions to help Holland keep out of the war. They sympathize with their little wooden-shoed neighbor whose good intentions are always going wrong.

The troubles of Holland have been many and complex since the war began, but recent issues are taxing Dutch diplomatic resources to the utmost. Military experts of both sides seem to agree that Holland would not be the worst of it on either side of the fight.

WAR BRINGS MEATLESS DAYS TO FRENCH NATION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Paris, May 15.—Meat is tabooed throughout France today. The government's schedule of two meatless days a week went into effect. For three months, on Tuesdays and Fridays, no kind of meat can be eaten in any restaurant or home.

The restriction was accepted by the people with a spirit of full cooperation in making its order the government pointed out that this was merely a "wise precaution," pending the receipt of food supplies from the United States.

By the middle of August it is expected a full supply of meat products will be coming in from America and the war will then be lifted. Vegetable substitutes for meat were served in many cafes today.

ALL MEAT IS CHEAP IN BRAZIL TO DATE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Rio de Janeiro, May 15.—Brazil's meat market has not yet been affected by the high cost of living—doubtless because there are about twice as many cattle in the country as people. The last hog census placed the figure at 50,000,000 head.

Despite the advice of health authorities who prescribe a light meat diet during hot weather, Brazilians are approximately their own weight in flesh, fish and fowl annually. And not weather is Brazil's eternal condition.

To feed the aggregate stomach of Rio de Janeiro during 1916 it required 165,000,000 pounds of beef, 2,500,000 pounds of veal, 5,700,000 pounds of pork and 400,000 pounds of mutton. To say nothing of a daily ration of about fifty tons of fish, and an equal amount of dried beef, 30,000 pounds of poultry and a liberal amount of goat flesh and wild game.

Brazilians probably eat the cheapest thing to eat. Prices fluctuated in 1916 between 7 and 13 cents a pound for beef, 7 and 15 cents for veal and 13 and 23 cents for pork.

U. OF COLUMBIA OPENS BIG SCHOOL OF WARFARE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, May 15.—Registration for instruction in Columbia's university's "war school" closed today with scores of embryo generals learning the modern art of battle.

In the military division, under Prof. Vickers and Capt. Van Dine, students are being instructed in dealing with noxious gases and liquid fire, trench fighting, rifle bullet penetration through different metals, how to take cover, "digging in," light and portable trench tools, the use of the sand bag, working under fire, barbed wire methods of erection, mining and counter mining, the periscope and its uses, trench attacks and bombing.

The naval division, under Prof. Stecher, is devoted principally to the electrical work on U. S. Navy's fighting ships, including searchlight operation, turret control and gun fire.

Tuition is free. Sham battles, in which every element of a European fight will be included in the theory, are to conclude the course of study next month. The whole program will probably be repeated in the summer school session.

FAVORS LICENSING OF FARMERS' DOGS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., May 15.—A license for the farmer's dog is provided for in a new bill which has just been introduced in the upper house by Senator J. Henry Bennett of Vilgoqua. The bill makes the law compulsory upon the counties. The measure provides that on or before the first day of running of the clerk of the town, village or city for a license. The fee to be charged shall be $2 for a male and $4 for a female. All fees thus collected shall be sent to the county treasurer for deposit in a separate fund.

The fund built from these license fees shall be used to pay damages done by dogs in the killing or running of sheep, cows, cattle, swine, horses or other live stock. Persons suffering such damage shall within ten days file an application with the town or village clerk. The clerk is directed to immediately notify the mayor, president of the village or chairman of the town board. Where the damage exceeds $20, a special committee may be appointed to appraise the extent of the damages. These claims shall be paid out of the license fee fund.

If there shall not be a sufficient sum to pay all such claims, then the claims have been paid there shall remain in the fund an amount exceeding $500, the amount shall be transferred to the general fund. Persons who shall neglect to take out licenses for their dogs are subject to a heavy penalty.

The bill is urged by the live stock associations of the state, especially the sheep growers, who claim to suffer the greatest loss because of damage by dogs. When La Follette was governor an attempt was made to place a tax on dogs to raise tax money, but this was vetoed. The present laws are not sufficiently adequate to protect animals, according to Assemblyman Woodard and other farmer members who favor the bill.
